ABSTRACT

Point-by-point image contrast values are generated from secondary electron collection during unbiased electron or ion beam bombardment of an integrated circuit (IC) in a vacuum environment to quantify the physical and electrical integrity of connections within the device. These values are stored for each type of circuit cell under standard conditions to quantify and check the performance of individual cells on the device.

5

Atty Docket No.: NSC1-M4000